

APPRENTICE TRAINING SET

Authorized by the WRA, apprentice training will be started here soon, announced Dr. Nat R. Griswold, night school director. As soon as details are worked out with various sections, 40 persons will be given training in the trade of their choice while they actually work in the Center.

Plans are now complete for placing six trainees in the garage. Each trainee will work the usual hours per week. During these hours he will have two major opportunities: (1) to perform all basic operations required of an auto mechanic; (2) to do supervised and systematic study.

During the period of training the trainee will receive the apprentice wage of $12 a month. In this period he will be certified by the Apprentice committee and will be replaced on regular job in the Center or outside. As soon as one apprentice completes his period of training, another will be assigned to that apprenticeship," he said.

All sections in the Center with jobs which gives opportunity for this kind of training can qualify for placing trainees. These apprenticeships are added to the present number on the employee's chart and the wages are drawn from the Apprentice Training Fund in Education.

Persons who wish to apply for apprenticeship must report to the office of the Night School Director, 31-2-D. Those who wish to follow a trade in the field of Auto Mechanics and who have reasonable likelihood of succeeding should apply immediately, said Dr. Griswold.

The program for apprentice training was initiated during the recent visit of Dr. Joseph Sessler, WRA vocational retraining supervisor, Washington, D. C., who conferred with various heads of the Education department during his stay here.

THE ROHWER Outpost Vol. III, No. 41 Rohwer, Arkansas November 20, 1943

RESETTLEMENT NEWS BY COMMITTEE

Following an intensive research and a joint meeting with the Councilmen and Block Managers, the Rohwer Committee for Study of Relocation Problems issued this week a statement of findings which was submitted for study and reference to Dillon S. Myer, director of WRA, Washington, D.C., in care of Project Director Ray D. Johnston. The findings were also posted on all block bulletin boards.

Excerpts from the statement are as follows:

"The reason for failure of the evacuee residents to render whole-hearted support to the relocation program, is not because they still continue to harbor resentment against the American Government for their unfortunate evacuation from their homes on the Pacific Coast; nor, reminding of their pride, it is hardly necessary to state that they do not remain complacently satisfied with this dull existence of privation within the confines of a wartime relocation center.

"The outcome of this joint meeting was that it brought forth two points. They are: (1) Failure of WRA to provide for the safeguard of evacuee lives after the relocation; (2) The lack of provision for group relocation, especially for farmers.

"The time will undoubtedly arrive when the Pacific area will be the main theater of war operations. We must assume that many of our American boys will be sacrificed on the front. At that time, we must expect a decided deterioration in the freshly created good will of our Caucasian neighbors and among members of the new community,

Message from Co-op

Since the early part of last October, a rumor had it that there were a few among the employees of the Rohwer Cooperative Enterprises who started an agitation involving the advisement of the resignations of the president and the general manager from the said enterprises. By means of propaganda, these agitators finally gathered a fair number of supporters among the Delegates of the Enterprises.

Hearing this rumor, some of the Directors attempted to investigate the source of this trouble by calling a joint meeting of the Board of Directors and the Co-op department managers, having received permission to do so by the President. In the meantime, the Board of Directors endeavored to work out a relief measure from an impartial standpoint in order to keep peace and order for the benefit of the general public.

At the joint meeting, each department manager expressed his neutral and cautious opinion, and the truth of the matter was reached. According to their words, little complaint was made about President Yoichiro Okuyama, while a few complaints were heard concerning General Manager Hideo Muto. However, these complaints related only to certain personal matters, and were not significant enough to cast any shadow upon the Enterprises itself. Major opinions asserted that Mr. Muto was a very faithful, fair and honest worker and that he was the very person fitted for the general managership.

The Board of Directors quite agreed with the opinions of these department managers. A certain un-

E. B. Whitaker, regional director of WRA in Arkansas, came to Rohwer Center high school on Nov. 10 during assembly period and gave a brief summary of present conditions here and elsewhere.

He gave several examples of Japanese families who have had happy relocation experiences and urged that other families should follow this example in order to show that the Japanese people are trustworthy and make valuable additions to the community.

THE UNKNOWN SIDE.....

"Nothing useless is or low; Each thing in its place is best, And what seems but idle show, Strengthens and supports the rest....."

Anyone may recognize the above passage as from Longfellow's "Builders".....

Yes.....Nothing is unimportant.....

Have you ever noticed a small screw, or a tiny gear in any machinery? 'seemed very unimportant didn't it? But if that small part was not there, the machine probably wouldn't have run.

In a community, such as our Rohwer Center, much is being done by the unseen side to keep the great machinery running. As we all know, we are interdependent on each other. But as in a football game, where the star quarterback gets all the glory, while the line men go unheard, the seen workers of Rohwer are talked about, but not the many, many, unseen workers of this Center. This column and the following poem is dedicated to the unseen workers.....

Since one work is no better than the other, I have chosen the surveyors as an example of one of those people who go unnoticed.....

Out in the wilds, where no one knows,
Plods the crew of gallant Surveyors,
Out to work in rain or snow,
There is a work that must be done.

Set the tripod, focus your sight,
Give me a shot on the nearby bench,
Cut the weed, that's on your right,
Scrape the mud and plumb your rod.

When at twelve we take our seats,
Drinking our teas and warm-

RELOCATION COMMITTEE

Through wartime tensions, there may even be cases of physical violence directed at us. Under such circumstances, it may be highly probable that a second evacuation, much more disastrous than the first, might result. What will WRA do to safeguard us then? There is no indication of protection under such impending issues contain in the existing plans of WRA relocation program. We feel justified in requesting that WRA should direct its efforts toward a deeper understanding of the evacuees' sentiments concerning relocation in view of this existing doubt."

"Group relocation is the best solution, especially for prospective farmers. Financial assistance, to be maintained by WRA until the constituents of the group are economically independent and self-supporting is essentially desirable.

"Although termed 'group' relocation, it need not be on a scale any larger than 20 or 30 families comprising a group. This procedure should in no way conflict with WRA's dispersed resettlement aim. Our assumption is that the present relocation program is inclined to be concerned chiefly with the resettlement of bachelors and persons without family encumbrances. Contrary to this assumption, our concern is the resettlement into normal life of the Issei. The majority of the aged Issei, who have long ago reached the limit of their productive years, through the sudden and unforeseen losses incurred by the abrupt evacuation, have not now the economic ability for another reconstruction of their broken lives. The task of independent re-es-
